Project Evaluation Criteria

1. Applicability (20 Points)

Description: Assesses how effectively the project applies TRAMA program teachings to a practical, real-world scenario. The project should demonstrate a clear understanding of the fashion supply chain, transparency, and sustainability concepts covered in the course.

2. Strategic Thinking (20 Points)

Description: Evaluates the depth and quality of strategic planning and problem-solving demonstrated in the project. The project should present well-thought-out strategies that address the complexities and challenges of fashion supply chain management.

3. Innovation (20 Points)

Description: Measures the originality and creativity of the proposed solutions and strategies. Innovative projects introduce new ideas or approaches that could potentially advance transparency and sustainability in the fashion supply chain.

4. Practicality (20 Points)

Description: Determines the feasibility and realism of the proposed plans or strategies being successfully implemented. The project should propose actionable steps that a fashion company could realistically execute.

5. Communication (20 Points)

Description: Assesses the clarity and effectiveness of the communication in the project report or presentation. This includes the organization of ideas, the clarity of the writing or speaking, and the use of supporting materials (charts, graphs, citations).
